SOOTHSAYER'S BLUES

Over nearly two decades, Dave McCann has firmly established himself in the hearts and minds of the Alberta music scene as one of the best untold singer-songwriters in contemporary roots music. His dedication to storytelling and song-craft continues to define his remarkable journey through the Folk Process. His latest release, "Soothsayer's Blues" was Recorded at the Zebra Ranch in Coldwater Mississippi. It's the homestead studio of the late great Muscle Shoals studio session player and legendary Producer Jim Dickinson (Bob Dylan, Ry Cooder, The Rolling Stones, Aretha Franklin). Soothsayer's Blues was a collaboration with Oxford Mississippi based ccolaborator and Producer Jimbo Mathus (Buddy Guy, Elvis Costello, Bette Smith, The Black Keys and Andrew Bird). It's a meditation on the spirit of North American Roots Music and its origins within the mythology of the American South. Not Gospel, Not Blues, Not Country, Not Rock n Roll, it's echoes all of it.
